Kaleidoscope...

Colors blend into each other,
Forming a new culture of color,
Yellows merge into reds
Forming new paths on which to tread
Greens amalgamate into blues,
Creating each day a friendship new
And with each color melting into another,
Great minds combine here further...

In the mind kaleidoscope creates a sense
An array of colors tears down the black fence of ignorance,
Cutting through this darkness with light
Reds, yellows, pinks and blues shine so bright;
Kaleidoscope, where all the barriers of frequency broke
Coming to life with each brush stroke
Creating a color different from the rest
Creating a new unique culture, one of the best...

Like different colors in a
Kaleidoscope,
To the future in our diversity
we bring hope,
Mixing into the diverse world
our colors start to peep;
Promises to this world we shall keep...

Walking into USIU one is hit by the myriad of cultures that co-exist harmoniously. The university has created a culture of its own, fading the boundaries of class, race and colour. This kaleidoscope of ethnicity paints many beautiful forms. It suggests beauty and infinite possibility, in a world gone crazed with conflict, USIU provides a soothing change.

Capturing the patterns created by the host of talent present in the university, we have come up with this edition of the Yearbook. My team and I have worked really hard to present quality work, especially presenting the important events and moments that have highlighted this academic year.

The most important being the WASC visit in March this year. Being an accredited university, recognised in the USA, is the icing on the cake for all graduating students from USIU. This is what sets us apart from the rest. The SAC elections, another major calendar event went by successfully, with a lot of expectations from the new student body on campus. Hope they are up for the challenge! The Mini Olympics was the highlight of this year's sports season in USIU. The pursuit of excellence in every field is inexhaustible here.

With the year coming to a close, it signals the time to bid farewell to the graduating class of 2005. On behalf of the Yearbook team we wish them great success in the path ahead. Hope this book will refresh the memories of university life whenever you choose to look through it.

“Our past remains as a kaleidoscope of beautiful memories etched in our minds. Looking forward to the future is what ultimately brings life, full circle.”

Word From Vice Chancellor

When I think of a Kaleidoscope, I am reminded of my childhood and all of the wonderful colors and shapes that are produced from the simple turning of a cylinder. Such a simple motion and yet it creates a lot of interest and joy.

USIU is becoming very much like a human kaleidoscope with people of all different sizes, shapes, colors and interests. Hopefully, your learning experience has not been solely in the classroom but also you have learned how to interact with people from different races, ethnicities, religions, and political affinities.

I know that their differences have challenged you to look at problems and people in very creative ways. Just like the simple movements of the kaleidoscope, it is easy to find a oneness on the USIU campus as well. You have all come here for a common goal, to acquire knowledge and understanding. Those who will leave the university this year must create their own human kaleidoscope and remember that incorporating differences will make your life experiences richer.

Good Luck.
Class of 2005
Word From Deputy Vice Chancellor

On August 20th 2005, we shall be celebrating the graduation of students who joined USIU three to four years ago for the undergraduates and about two years ago for the graduates.

As we bask in the joy of their achievements, one cannot help reflect on the start of this journey whose end we shall be celebrating on that day two to four years ago, the students joined USIU from different backgrounds. They had different objectives, attitudes, expectations and world view, but they had one common goal, to gain the necessary knowledge, skills and attitudes to take them to the next level in their lives.

At USIU, they went through a  a way of experiences that have imparted on various aspects of their lives. What we are seeing today are the different beautiful patterns of colours of their lives that have carefully been mixed and balanced through the Kaleidoscope that is USIU.

Everyday in the last two to four years, I have seen most of these graduating students as they passed by my window; I have heard their different voices, their laughter, shared their anxieties and their aspirations. I have seen most of the undergraduate students grow from their first day during orientation, through their freshman year to the grandaunt we see today.

I have also seen the sense of expectation and determination that the graduate students came in with two or so years ago change into a sense of achievement and victory that we now see.

Upon their graduation on 20th August 2005, one phase of the students' lives will be over and they will be walking their way through the graduation isle to the next levels of their lives, a life that we are sure, will be a reflection of what they will have gathered during their journey in USIU.

The theme of the 2005 yearbook - “Kaleidoscope” denotes change. It is an apt description of what has gone on during the lives of the students whose graduation we are celebrating. In the last five to six years, USIU has undergone tremendous changes that have seen it grow to the beautiful campus it is today. The changes greatly improved the learning environment in the university. Other changes that the institution went through include the change from the quarter to the semester system, which resulted in some changes in the academic programs and calendar. The number of students including that of the international students has also grown tremendously; there have been many other positive changes that have seen us grow to what we are today. In deed, the class of 2005 is the beautiful pattern of symmetrical colours that is a product of these changes.

Therefore, there are students that have experienced much change even as they grew in USIU. These changes have prepared them well for the fluid world that we live in today. Indeed, as they happily walk through the graduation isle, to the outside world, we at USIU will be looking at them with pride. Pride, because we will be releasing to the world yet another group of young people who we are confident, will make significant contributions to the world.

My message to the class of 2005 is that they should go out there and be a true reflection of the enriching experiences in USIU, only then shall those you have left behind look to you and work to join you out there to continue, and enhance the beautiful colours that only the Kaleidoscope, that is USIU, can reflect.

Congratulations
Class of 2005.
Word from the Dean School of Arts

By Ruthie C. Reno

Ever since you entered the gates of USIU you have seen, heard and experienced many things. You have experienced some of these things through your academic eyes, others through co-curricular activities' eyes and yet others through extracurricular and socialization perspective. Each of these experiences has had an impact on who you have become as you exit this phase of your life. Some of the experiences have been super, others have been average and yet others may have been a disappointment.

My wish for you is to take each of the valuable experiences you have had at USIU and examine each one. Banish those that have not added value to your life and weave out a beautiful tapestry with those that have had a positive impact on your growth and development.

As you begin a new phase in your life, always remember that real joy does not come from the ease or riches or from the praise of men, but from doing something worthwhile. Use the intellectual, social, ethical and multicultural skills you have acquired through your studies not only in the pursuit of your career goals but also in helping the less fortunate members of your community.

And as John Wesley put it:

Do all the good you can
By all the means you can,
In all the ways you can,
In all the places you can,
At all the times you can,
To all the people you can,
As long as ever you can.

Best wishes to the Class of 2005!
The cultural day was marked by flamboyant exhibitions of culture, bravery, talent and creativity. Its origins from the residents headed by Mr. Kisilu were based on a charitable cause directed towards the Shangilia Mtoto wa Africa children's home.

Students and a troop of eighty entertainers served the audience a show of dance, song, acrobatic and theatre. In attendance were Mrs. Asunda – DVC student Affairs, Director of Shangilia Mtoto wa Africa and Ambassador Kikaya among others. Dances from Uganda, Kenya, Cameroon, Burundi, and Arabian countries USIU raised the excitement of the audience which was climaxed by the performance from the guests, Wazee Kanisani – who raised AIDS awareness through comedy and drama, and children from Shangilia home who merited a standing ovation from the crowd after enthralling song and dance and exciting yet frightfully dangerous acrobatics.

As a foreign student, I must say am extremely impressed by the generosity expressed by the community towards charitable causes. It is my prayer that the USIU community keeps the spirit going thereby creating the socially concerned citizens that Africa so needs.

The children were served with some drinks and eats afterwards and this marked the grand finale to a successful cultural day.
If you are a USIU student then you well know that the black history month is a regular February event. Being in the organizing committee, I can say it was a LONG journey in making this black history month a success. To give an insight into what it's like to be in such a position, the preparations started last year in November and consisted of twice weekly 8.00 am meetings! It was decided early on that the theme for this month would be 'Blackness and Black Resilience.'

Before I get into the nitty gritty of what it entailed, What is this Black History Month?

The credit for it inception goes to Harvard Scholar Dr. Carter G. Woodson, who was determined to bring Black History into the mainstream public arena. Woodson devoted his life to making the “world see the Negro as a participant rather than as a lay figure in history.”

In 1926 Woodson organized the first annual Negro History Week, which took place during the second week of February. Woodson chose this date to coincide with the birthdays of Fredrick Douglass and Abraham Lincoln - two men who had greatly impacted the black population. Over time, Negro History Week evolved into the Black History Month that we know today - a four-week-long celebration of African American History. This year in USIU the month was divided into four weeks each with its own theme and activities.

The first week had the opening ceremony, which took place on the fourth February with a speech by P.L.O Lumumba. For those of you who do not know this man, Martin Luther King Jr. comes to mind as a close comparison. His eloquence is unmatched as evidenced from the fact that he made a 45 minute speech without once looking at a piece of paper. He spoke inspiringly of how Africans are the most resilient of the races because colonialism and slavery did not break us. He, however, stressed that we need to pull ourselves up by our bootstraps and not shun hard work. His words rang true when he said, “Siri ya maendeleo ni watu, ardhi na siasa safi.” (the secret to development is people, land and clean politics). What was most impressive about this day though was the fact that for probably the first time in USIU history the auditorium was not only full to capacity, but some of the students had to sit on the floor.

The second week was the psychology week. A visiting black American psychologist professor Robert Guthrie gave a talk to the general student population and a seminar specifically for psychology students.

The third week was dubbed the student week and involved student based activities thought up and run by the students. The first event was the Open Mic Wednesday where anyone could go up and perform their talents. It there was a fear that it would not be great because not many people had signed up. On the d day the committee members were running around like a bunch of headless chicken trying to get everything together. The main event of the week came on Friday when we had an interuniversity debate and dance competition. Students from Nairobi University, Daystar, Egerton and other Kenyan universities battled it out to see who would be the best debater and who would provide the best dance. USIU fared pretty well emerging 2nd in the dance competition. Susan Owiyo of the Kisumu 100 fame was at hand to serenade the students with her music. She and her famed nyatiti player entertained the crowd immensely.

The month sadly came to an end with the closing ceremony attended by Charity Ngilu. Through her experience as a woman in leadership, she was able to articulate on the challenges that women face in leadership. Each of the events during the entire month was interspersed with rich cultural dances from the USIU community.

The Burundian dance performed on the last day was truly a show of elegance and grace.

From the events of this month we are left with the words of a man who though not black has inspired and continues to inspire us today. Mahatma Gandhi says, “solutions come not from without but from within.”
Increasing and measuring diversity in the School of Business

Part of the strength of the school of business has been due to the diversity of the students, faculty, and the teaching materials and experiences. Our mission specifically aims to foster diversity in the University. As a graduate, what do you see as some of the benefits of having been a student in a University and school that promotes diversity?

There are diverse ways of interpreting diversity at USIU. In the school of business, we promote the diversity of faculty members. We aim to attract international faculty from different parts of the world. In the past, we have had full-time and part-time faculty from India, Sudan, and the US. Our desire is to increase the number of faculty from other African countries, from Europe, from the Americas, and from China. In Summer 2003, we had a Kenyan visiting faculty member who was teaching in the US. In July 2005, we shall have a Kenyan visiting professor who is based in Hong Kong. In Summer 2005, we also have an American visiting professor from US teaching business ethics and cross-cultural management. We continue to collaborate with faculty from Georgia State University (US), Alliant International University (US), London Business School (UK) and Columbia Business School (US). The interaction with the diverse faculty enriches the school and the University, all for the benefit of the students.

Apart from measuring the international/local diversity of faculty, we also recognize gender as well as ethnic diversity among our faculty. We also measure the diversity of educational backgrounds. We have Kenyan faculty educated in Kenya, India, China, America, South Africa, and UK. We believe that each of the faculty members has enriched your learning experience at USIU. We already know that ethnic diversity strengthens the school, contrary to the views of some of the politicians in Kenya.

I know you have shared classes with students from different parts of Kenya, Africa, Europe, Asia, and America. Our hope is that this has effectively prepared you for international business in a global economy. You also shared classes with students from different socio-economic classes and probably discovered what Professor Prahalad of the Michigan University Business School calls the “Fortune at the Bottom of the (socio-economic) Pyramid”. The experience will help you develop business models that work for Kenya and Africa.

We shall continue to keep in touch with you if you allow us to. We shall come back to you in 5 to 10 years and ask the question: Do you agree that diversity you experienced at USIU prepared you for a rich and meaningful personal and professional life?

Kaleidoscope: Sharing Your Beauty

By Lucy Abiel-Ndumbo

It’s that time of the year again when we bid farewell to the Graduating Class after years of fun, study and growth at USIU. The Class of 2005 has chosen as their theme the Greek word, “Kaleidoscope” and for me it indicates the intricate beauty that lies within each one of the members.

As I reflected on this theme and its essence for the graduates, the words that came to me were, “Beautiful people.” Beautiful in the sense that each one of you is leaving USIU with great knowledge and skills to enable you pursue aspects of your dreams in the outside world. Apart from that each one of you has innate gifts and talents that have greatly enriched your learning experiences. You have also shared parts of yourselves with friends, colleagues, lecturers and the general USIU community. In sharing who you are, you have touched various lives and therein lies beauty.

Indeed, as you go out into the world and begin to fulfill your dreams, remember that you are a beautiful person. A beautiful person will make time to reach out to others, and to listen to them without being judgmental. A beautiful person will avoid haughtiness in dealing with others, and will speak the truth at all costs. A beautiful person will avoid sowing discord in relationships, and will instead enhance growth and unity.

Well, beautiful people, the world is waiting for you. Go, and do not be afraid to share the beauty within you. You may not change the world, but you can definitely change the circle around you. And over time, just as the mirrors in a kaleidoscope reflect the intricate beauty of the particles within, your influence will be reflected in the lives you will have touched.

Peer Counseling

'Answers from within.' In this day and age of many questions and relatively few answers the Peer Counseling Club is an oasis in the desert.

The image conjured at the mention of this name by many people is that of a group of people, sharing sob stories—the stories of our lives. Myth or fact only by being there for a meeting will one truly experience what really happens, the club does not claim to have all the answers but only seeks to draw out those already in an individual by developing them to be all they can be.

Rotaract Club

Background
The Rotaract club of USIU was started in July 2002, after its official registration with the Students Affairs Council (SAC). The club received its official charter on the 21st of February 2003. The Club is primarily organized for young men and women (ages 18 to 30) to serve the physical and social needs of their communities, widen their friendships and professional contacts, and increase their understanding of the world. The Rotaract club of USIU is part of the Rotary District 9200 encompassing Kenya, Uganda, Tanzania, Ethiopia and Eritrea, and is sponsored by the Rotary club of Nairobi. With a membership of 40 members, the club has established itself as one of the fastest growing and most ambitious.

The Rotaract club organizes a variety of projects and activities, depending primarily on the interests of the club members. There are, however, three types of activities within the Rotaract program that all clubs undertake in varying degrees:
- Professional development,
- Leadership development, &
- Service projects.

Together, these three areas ensure a balanced club program and provide important experience and opportunities for the personal development of each Rotaractor.

Goals
Among the goals of the Rotaract Club of USIU are:
1. To develop professional and leadership skills;
2. To emphasize respect for the rights of others, and to promote ethical standards and the dignity of all useful occupations;
3. To provide opportunities for young people to address the needs and concerns of the community and our world;
4. To provide opportunities for working in cooperation with sponsoring Rotary clubs;
5. To motivate young people for eventual membership in Rotary.
Students in free enterprise (SIFE) is a non-profit organization, which was founded in 1975. Currently, SIFE operates on more than 1,600 colleges and universities in 40 countries around the world. SIFE students apply what they learn in class, to come up with and develop educational outreach projects, that teach individuals in their communities, the principles of market economics, entrepreneurship, personal financial success and business ethics.

USIU embraced SIFE on February 18th 2003. Through their vision, Nurturing dreams through free enterprise education, the team carries out educational outreach projects in slum areas, schools, and even in prisons. Some of the projects they have are: soap-making project, whose objective is to provide an alternative means of income for Kasarani Starehe youth group, by teaching them soap-making skills; Anti-corruption project, whose aim is to sensitise the public on the negative effects of corruption on their businesses; Budding entrepreneurs, whose aim is to create an entrepreneurial mind-set among primary and secondary school students. The team has even extended their outreach program to Gayaza, a village which is 12km from Uganda's capital, Kampala.

Since 2004, the USIU SIFE team has been carrying out projects in the Langata Women's Prison. The team began with the remandees, and they found out that most of them find themselves back in prison, since when they are released, they still commit petty crimes. USIU SIFE therefore decided to empower the remandees with entrepreneurial skills, so that once they were out of prison, they would have something that they could do, so as to help them earn an income. The team also found out that most of the remandees had good business ideas, but lacked know-how on implementation and financing of these ideas.

The objective of the project is to empower both remandees and convicts with personal and financial success skills, by empowering them with ideas that will enable them to be self-reliant, once they are out of prison.

During the 1st phase of the project, which was carried out last year, the team taught the remandees skills on starting a business, planning, public relations, marketing, book-keeping and business ethics. They were also taught looming skills.

This year, the team has expanded their program, by also working with convicts, rather than only remandees. USIU SIFE has already visited the prison twice, whereby remandees have been taught looming, and convicts have been educated on how to start a business. The USIU SIFE team will still continue with their visits, throughout this semester, and the prisoners will be empowered with entrepreneurial skills and will also be taught tie and dye skills. We hope to work in conjunction with other organisations, like the Kenya Human rights commission, and Prisoner Care Programme (PCP).
Exchange Program

By Lynette Kimatha

Did you miss on the opportunity? No cause for alarm, I will tell you what it is, how it operates, and how amazing it is. Many who have participated have the greatest experience in college and would tell many to seize the opportunity. I have personally spoken to a few of them and you cannot believe some things they tell. One thing is for sure, their way of thinking changes greatly.

Here in USIU, students with a GPA of 3.00 and above have the advantage in participating therefore it means a lot of great and hard work. Other international students from outside Kenya however have been provided to them as that before graduating, to complete a Study Course therefore giving unlimited access to this experience.

Cross Cultural an integral part of all. The exchange programs goes beyond limitations and boundaries live in order to open your mind to people and radically different from your own.

Through hard work, begin to understand and the problems and joys of developing country and a country. The experienced have said is a transformative experience and to grow on.

All student exchange especially those that come abroad are given the opportunity to explore the environment of our country. On these programs, they can visit our national Mombassa beach, and Nakuru or safari in the Serengeti. These programs have been designed not only for adventure, but for reflection. It is therefore a period for all to reflect on their stay and experience in whichever country and how they will integrate it into their life back home.

It is basically a part of the KALEIODOSCOPE in you!
We have nothing boredom breeds .............

By Richard Wales

Creation of delusory attachments. When we have nothing to say, it's all been said, its all been felt. We have crossed the point of no return. The line, the limit, the difference between the right and wrong, the good or bad has been obliterated. No rule no law remains sacrosanct. Improbability pervades through every soul on this planet. Manipulation and desire our only motivators.

Our senses continually cheated into temporary pleasure. It's not about our state of mind it's about what we can get to please our choices, our path and our relationships. It's about our bad choices that fill our material lives with insignificant minutiae that we think we need.

Fundamentals that we all ignore, superficial fertilizer that breeds human, organic and psychological waste. Hope, faith, dreams rules of faith that were originally founded on the framework of experimentation. The "average", the "mediocre" and the "normal". Let go; let us bring out the inherent wishes and qualities that we know we have. The only sanctum you reach where the only influence you have is yourself.

Clarity in such a moment makes you feel what if you fracture your assigned path to life. All the corporate jargon you have heard your whole life, becomes meaningless. Brain washed by notions crippled with inherent stupidity. A celebration of mediocrity, meaning to meaningless events that consume our life.

Words that are within the literary realm of linguistic comprehension but will always be beyond realization. An ethical conflict that will always be a part of our subconscious.

Usiu Today
On behalf of the Deans, faculty, and academic support staff I would like to offer hearty congratulations to the class of 2005.

The essential indicator of quality university education are graduates who are responsible, resilient, professional and creative. We are proud that USIU programs have exposed you to a broad spectrum of human knowledge in an environment that stimulates professional and personal growth.

We have prepared you for the many roles you will assume in life by offering academic programs of distinction, taught by accomplished faculty dedicated to their student's success. We have also supplemented your academic experience and enhanced the value of your degree through internships and practicums that give you a chance to learn hands-on what your career will be like—from experiences in media room to psychiatric clinics to banks. You have also participated in programs that benefit the community. Along the way you have made friends, discovered more about yourself and learnt skills that will last long after you graduate. In short you have worked hard and now you are the best, “ready for the real life”, to soar and “to go places”.

My special salutations and congratulations to those of you who have combined careers, community service, academic learning and family life.

Congratulations All!!!

Article: Tours in USIU

When Mukhtar Sidi last December organised a tour of Lamu Island, which was recently declared a World Heritage Site by UNESCO, little did he know that he would end up with a retinue of 80 signups in tow.

The "Experience Lamu tour", as it was called, was the tourism student's biggest tour. Indeed, over the last four years, Mukhtar has organised mainly camping tours to Amboseli, Mt. Kenya, Samburu (over Easter 2005), Hell's Gate, Longonot, of course, world-famous Maasai Mara Game Reserve, Aberdare Ranges, etc.

None of his tours, however, have reaped such a high turnout of clients as "Lamu tour". Not surprisingly, therefore, that the 23-year-old "Mr. Tours"—as he is sometimes referred to by his fellow students—observed that the Lamu excursion was by far his most challenging.

The tour saw him almost single-handedly handle all logistical preparations, viz. transport, food and accommodation. Realising that the tour was a heavy logistical burden on him, some sympathetic members of the tour even offered to volunteer to serve in cooking and other tasks.

The experience amassed by the industrious Mukhtar in organising these tours is no doubt a huge complement to his tourism classes. And faith in his organising abilities is drawn from even the most unlikely of quarters. On several occasions, he has been prodded by tourism lecturers to organise tour excursions for USIU students or visiting exchange students, who he says have been his most enthusiastic clients.

Mukhtar, who has been organising trips since 2001, recalls that his first tour was to the Maasai Mara in 2001, a tour van trip in which there were nine signups. A few months later, he set out to yet another trip to the Mara, only this time he used the popular 4WD game trucks.

So, what spurred the acting chairman of the Students Affairs Committee (2004-2005) to start organising budget game safaris?

"It is a combination of factors", he says. "Mainly my interest in travel and wild game viewing, and moral support from friends and family."

Many of Mukhtar's travel clientele have been drawn from both the USIU student population and close friends. He is quick to point out that certain members at USIU have been particularly inspiring. He cites:

Mr. Alphonce Tokali, who is a lecturer and coordinator of the hospitality and tourism programmes.

Mr. Patrick Mulindi, lecturer of hospitality and tourism programmes.

Mr. Njeru—lecturer of hospitality and tourism programmes.

Mr. Kisilu—campus housing officer.

Last but not least, give a big vote of thanks to his elder brother Chef Arfan, better known as Bwana Sidi for treating Mukhtar's clients with finger-licking meals.

So, how has the affable tourism and IBA student been able to juggle between studies and incessant tour plots?

"It has been tricky managing studies and frequent tours at the same time but somehow I am able to pull through", he says. "But things can get really stressful especially when there are last-minute tour cancellations or letdowns by some of the people on whom I rely for logistical supplies", he adds.

The precarious nature of the tours trade notwithstanding, Mukhtar has big plans.

Says he: "Inshallah, I hope to launch a massive promotional website targeting the domestic tourist market. It is also my wish to acquire or own a few campsites within some of the more popular game parks. Of course, I have plans to own my own tours firm complete with a fleet of vans and 4WD trucks."

For Mukhtar, it is the same diligence with which he has solitarily overcome the challenges of organising budget tour safaris that has seen him tactfully take charge of the USIU Students Affairs Committee (SAC).

Even though he was elected Vice Chairman of the committee last year, Mukhtar ascended to the position of acting chairman position following the resignation of Chair Mr. Paul Odoro.

As Vice Chair, Mukhtar's docket also included that of Treasurer, in line with constitutional provisions of the SAC. Later on, however, a by-election saw a new Treasurer elected and Mukhtar could concentrate on his Chairmanship.

In retrospect, the SAC head is proud that cooperation and teamwork have been the hallmarks of his tenure. He however admits that walking the tight rope between appeasement of his student electorate and understanding the university administration's priorities has not been easy.

Whether on the road or in class, the final year student has borne all challenges in his stride with nose-to-the-grindstone determination, great character and tact.

He is grateful to ALL members of the SAC for their cooperation and teamwork; he would also like to acknowledge the efforts of "notably Edna ("Aisha") and Belinda ("Nuru") during the Mr. and Miss USIU (2004-2005) and making it a great success, the organising committee, too, came in for special mention...

Sports Council 2004-2005
Student Affairs Council

By Alan Mwendwa

The Student Affairs Council (or SAC as it is more commonly known) is a body made up of 10 students who cater for the needs and wants of the entire student population.

These same students have the honor of representing USIU in academic issues and various activities, and can be referred to as the mascots of this institution. It is, therefore, not surprising to find students vigorously campaigning for the opportunity to join the SAC body every year.

Looking at the history of past SAC campaigns, this year’s was termed “the biggest disappointment.” Jack Omamo, who ran for SAC Chair 2004, said “I can’t believe that out of a USIU population of 3000 plus, only 535 students took time to vote….where is the student morale?”

Before the campaigns can officially begin, the potential candidates had to meet a set of conditions to be termed ‘viable’ for election. Candidates must receive clearance from the finance office, the registrar’s office and the student affairs office.

The campaigns began on 4th of March and came to a close on the 14th of the same month. The speech day which was held the following day was received with criticism by the student population, partly due to the venue and partly due to the low student participation. Ganiu Odewale, a Nigerian student, said that “it was evident at the speeches that less than ten students were paying attention to what was going on…the rest were eating and minding their own business.”

Omamo pointed out that the speeches are an important part of any campaign, and an event of this caliber should be held at a place like the auditorium where the candidates can have total concentration of the students. “Even classes should be cancelled for such an activity” he said.

Voting kicked off on the 16th of March and followed on to the next day. Even with two days and almost 24 hours of voting, only a sixth of the total population took part in the process. This number also fell under criticism.

On the evening of March 17th, the electoral commission released the results of the elections. All the students vying for student government were elected with the exception of Amanda Gicharu who was running against Lawrence Were, the new SAC Chairman. To some, these results did not come as a shock as all the candidates run unopposed except for Lawrence and Amanda.

The swearing in ceremony was held on May 17th at the cafeteria. The turnout was termed poor yet again but the new SAC chairman promised to change the low morale in the USIU community.

The following is a list of the new face of the Student Affairs council.

Lawrence Were – Chairman
Joe Mark Gachithiire – Vice Chair
Caesar Gikonyo – Welfare 2
Charmaine Mwenesi – Welfare 1
Elaine Adema Maviala – Executive Secretary
Wanjiku Chege – Assistant secretary
Alan Mwendwa – School of Arts and Sciences representative
Paul Juma Were – Graduate representative
Valentine Concert

By Amanda Gicharu

Creamy chocolate, mushy cards and sweet smelling roses decked the entrance to the auditorium, where the valentine in Africa' Concert was set to blow away the U.S.I.U. crowd.

After two weeks of meticulous preparation, the fated day had finally arrived. This concert promised to be 'the best that USIU had ever seen'; we had quite a reputation to live up to and our own expectations to fulfill. The proceeds of the event were to go to the Seeds of Hope Women's Center, courtesy of the organizers, the For Youth By Youth Club.

The International Students had a wide selection of food available to suit every palette. They were to dazzle the crowd's taste buds while we were to charm their souls. The next performance, 'Something stupid' by Alan and me was tense as we went through the was upbeat and soppy, a definite tedious routine of sound checks and last minute touch ups.

In the usual USIU flare the show began exactly half an hour late. The crowd poured in with rending expressions. Combined with the gothic, dark makeup the nervousness of the performers grew. The Lynx band rocked the audience with the sugary lyrics of mystery as to who cut the first piece of cake that cued the prompt Okwalinga, Jeff Gakuya, John consumption of the entire delicacy. Namu, Adrian Ochieng', Alan Mwendwa and Arnold Ford made an attempt at being a boyband serenading the 'Spoken Word'. It went well with the ladies who wailed and screamed their throats hoarse.

...There were whispers of a guest star performer which added an element of suspense to the already electric ambiance. There was quite a turnout of performers with a variety of music genres represented.

The show kicked off with a sweetly relaxing song called Lullaby. The singer, Don Ngatia, wowed the crowd with his amazing vocals not to mention his unique afro.

Alice then belted out the soul wrenching lyrics of Toni Braxton's Unbreak my Heart' an ironic choice considering it was the found and not lost love's day. Eric countered with the song 'Hold on', a perfect response to her poignant performance. In the theme of the day, Mary Muthoni chose to sing 'Here Without You', the lyrics capturing the feeling of loss and loneliness in the absence of a loved one.

stage accompanied by Janet in an India Arie rendition of ‘A Beautiful Surprise’.

By this time Harry Kimani had returned from lunch and the crowd was desperate to see him on stage. He was briefly introduced by the M.C., Jack Omamo, which heightened their eagerness. Patience still remains a virtue and they had to put their expectancy aside to enjoy the yet to be performed pieces.

The Ministry of Dub, then did their version of ‘No Woman no Cry’, amid much acclaim as they later won the Best Band prize.

One of the Valentine’s Concert traditions is to auction off prospective dates. Soumaiya, an ex-change student was the first to be put up for bidding. The price rocketed as she showed off her assets through some hip gyrations. She set a difficult record to break, going at a whopping 10,000 Kshs!

To mellow the mood after the outrageous bidding, Sean Klotsman performed the oldie but goodie, ‘Can’t Take that away from me’ to a highly responsive audience. Soumaiya, then returned to the stage, this time to recite a tender love poem.

Hip-hop was the name of the game, when Rishab and Abe broke down their original composition, ‘Organized Anarchy’. Bumbaclan, a group hot on the local scene followed with ‘Don’t Touch my Car.’

The cash came flooding in like a tidal wave when Ford, the exchange student (who performed the ‘Spoken Word”), stepped to the bidding plate. He stood silently on stage while the ladies clawed each other to get a chance for a date. The price rose ridiculously fast, from 10,000 Kshs to 16,000 Ksh. Before any knew it Ford was ‘sold for … drum roll please. … 27,000 Ksh! This will definitely go into the USIU Hall of Fame, because it is highly unlikely this record will ever, ever be broken.

While Ford was whisked away and we were all trying to come back down to earth, a group of Brookhouse dancers salsaed us towards sanity. Backstage, I was literally banging my head against the wall, I was being auctioned. We all know no one could top Ford, but I had to at least come close to Soumaiya. It was for charity after all.

Meanwhile, a great display of musical creativity was embodied in the performance by a ‘Bunch of Friends’ a.k.a. Alan Mwendwa, Joanne Mugambi, Paul Okwalinga, Julie and Sofia. They fused the songs ‘I Don’t want to know’ and ‘Numb’, with acoustic guitar and violin, to create a wonderfully unique sound. They were the apparent curtain raisers for Harry Kimani.

The time had finally come; he overwhelmed the avid crowd with his hit single ‘Haiya’ as well as the syrupy Nakupenda. By the time he walked off stage the crowd was left thoroughly entertained and still dieing for more.

The girl-duet ‘Tyte’ comprising of Muthoni Ndoga and Njeri, closed the show with an amazing piece that won them the prize for Best Performance. Their rendition of Alicia Keys ‘Falling’ and ‘Diary’ were truly worthy of that recognition.

After this I was finally sold along with Sheila. I fetched 10,000 Kshs, with a sigh of relief, while Sheila’s price was just as impressive. All in all, it was a concert never to be forgotten, especially in the minds of those who performed. Congratulations to Alex Vaporidis, Sujay, Siganga Wawdo, Owen Ndirangu and the performers on a job well done.
The 2005 Rugby season has seen USIU Rugby team stamp their authority in the Eric Shirley Shield league competition. The team has been able to win all their matches so far with bonus points thus being first in their pool. This can be said to be a development of the just concluded East Africa University Games where USIU Rugby won the Silver Medal, humbly going down to Mean Machine, a Kenya Cup Side. It is also important to note that USIU were the losing finalist in last season’s ESS finals. The team is in high spirits and is indeed building on last season’s achievements with Kenya Cup being the Limit.

The future does looks bright, as the team has for the last two semesters registered high numbers at training averaging 30 players per training session. This can be attributed to the fact that there has been a high influx of freshmen in the team with promising talent. With the current form, the team is hoping to clinch the Eric Shirley Shield Cup that would see them earn a place in the Kenya Cup League and ensure a brilliant performance at the KRFU Sevens Circuit.

The selection of team Captain Lewis Olaka into the Kenyan Sevens National team and of two other players Vice Captain Hosea Ngesa and Peter Opilo into the provisional Shuja Sevens Squad is a plus for the Team. This should go a long way in raising the spirits of the team. These players are expected to bring back experience when they return to the team. Congratulations to the players for making a break into the national teams and for keeping USIU in high places.

Off the rugby pitch, USIU Rugby team did USIU proud by giving back to the community. In April 2005 USIU rugby held a Community Service Exercise at The Mathari Mental Hospital. The team members helped clean the hospital... and also donated clothes, foodstuffs and cleaning equipment to the Hospital. The team members also had an opportunity to interact with the patients at the hospital and share light moments with them.

The day was set off with an introductory session by the hospital’s management and an explanation of what to expect. The hospital’s management acknowledged the continued support and cordial relations between Mathari hospital and USIU reiterating the fact that USIU was always welcome back.

Next, the rugby team was taken on a tour of the hospital. The team had the opportunity to visit the out patient clinic, the different male wards where we had a first hand opportunity to interact with our brothers trying to restore their sanity.

At this point, the time had come to get down to the day’s business. This saw us end up at the maximum-security section of the hospital. The maximum-security section is used to house and treat hardcore criminals and truant offenders due to cases perceived to be insane. The hospital’s duty is to therefore rehabilitate them.

We got down to work, cleaning the reception area of the maximum-security section of the hospital as well as the walkways and corridors. The DVC Student Affairs, the team Patron and the Sports Coordinator were all part of this exercise busy scrubbing and mopping the dusty and rough floors.

After three hours of gruelling cleaning, it was time to leave. But just before we could leave, there were two things to be done. It was indeed a rare opportunity to get to meet the patients at the Maximum-Security section. They were quite delighted to have visitors with them.

Finally, as the end drew closer, the Rugby team Chairman together with DVC Student Affairs donated brooms and buckets to the Staff of the hospital. The team also donated the foodstuffs, clothes and shoes as well as personal effects to the hospital. That was truly time well spent.

With such commitment to the game and to the community USIU Rugby is bound to go places.

Word From the Chairman

By Antony Peret

The 2004 season will go down in the history books as one of the best seasons U.S.I.U Rugby has ever had. The team that had taken three years to grow had finally matured into a well oiled rugby machine.

The 2005 season shall be ably led by Kenya team trialist Lewis Olaka and deputised by Hosea Ngesa. The team manager shall be Martin Fundi with his assistant as Marvin Muyera. The chairman shall be Anthony Pertet. And they should be able to steer U.S.I.U to their right-full place as champions.

GOOD LUCK
TEAM 2005!!!!
Hockey
From Weeping Boys to Flag Carriers.

By Steve Njiru

The current USIU hockey team has tremendously evolved from whips to champs. Starting as a banned team by the school in early 2000, the squad was formed on a Friday after the annual 2000 mini-Olympics.

The next day, the newly formed team attended and miraculously won a Catholic University tournament where they played calling each other formed team attended and Olympics. Their squad was formed on a Friday their exposure chances. New players joined. As a "team with a bright future" remembers John. The win boosted morale and many other new players joined. As a participatory team they were only restricted to play within Nairobi, therefore minimizing their exposure chances.

A 6-0 win against Murang'a Teachers College motivated the administration and they were hosted for the 2001 East Africa Varsity games in Uganda. They drew all the games and were sadly eliminated in the first round. The same thing happened in the 2002 East Africa Varsity games in Tanzania.

Back to the drawing board, the team realized they needed to play against well-established and more technically experienced teams so as gain experience. The school allowed them to play the KHU Premier League and sought the services of hockey guru, Mike Jakoyo Omondi.

On their debut season, they scored 7 goals and watched 36 sounding on their boards. These were the times when the fans at city park grounds referred to them as "Weeping Boys" says Samuel Ondimu. You would expect the boys to quit, but they didn't. "Despite all the game we lost, we knew that the losses and mistakes were potential lessons" says Richard.

Come 2003, the team was determined to change their loosing name and most players had matured and were absolutely tremendous. In the first leg of the 2003/2004 National league season, the team thrashed all their opponents. The team was at the top of table standings, a quite "unfamiliar" position. Many thought that it was a spell of good luck that was deemed to be short-lived.

In the 2nd Leg, they stamped their authority by being crowned the Kenya Hockey Union 2003/2004(Season) Men's National League Champions. They scored 32 and allowed 9. Being the winners of the league they had the onus of representing Kenya in the East and Central Club Championships, which were held in Uganda. They were bronze medalist! This made them the first team in USIU's history to represent Kenya and the University outside the country. They scored 10 goals and allowed 1. They are also the silver medalists in the 2004 East African Varsity games: allowing 6 goals and scoring 17.

So what has led to the transformation of this team?

The secret recipe is: support from the institution, blended with the expertise of an able coach, added to a team with determination and the sheer will to win. A lot of support and resources from the school has helped much in the maximization and utilization of talents. All these come hand in hand with the dexterity of coach, Mike J Omondi, who says, "I have watched my boys evolve from Jibralunes to champions and am very proud of our achievement."

Their success has not only been recognized by the USIU community, but also by other clubs who appreciate them for combining Education and a wanting sport. "The main reason that makes USIU hard to defeat is that they play with 90% of their brains and 10% with their body during a match, unlike my team which does the vice-versa." says the Kenya Police Hockey Captain, Kennedy O'Shikuku. Armed forces hockey captain, Ben Owaga, talks of the team as, "a team with a bright future".

The desire for success has propelled the team to its high profiles. It was only through bringing out the best of their teammates that enabled them to achieve their great teamwork. "When you bring out the best in your team mate, then the team as a whole shines." says Captain John Kabuu.

During the 2005 sports dinner that was ordained to recognize and appreciate sports talent in USIU, the hockey team was proud to have its members win various awards: Sportsman with the highest GPA, Most inspirational sportsman, and Sportsman of the year.

It is true that Winners never quit, but quitters do not win and the hockey team is not ready to quit. This goes hand in hand with their Slogan "Makwapa, Makwapa, Makwapa, watanusa Makwapa" — meaning that anyone who crosses their path in the hockey field has to smell their sweat secreted by their desire for successes.

Beauty in the kaleidoscope

By Faith C. Miyandari

Our community is a kaleidoscope of gorgeous cultures. We have come so far into civilization and still our traditions remain strong; a heritage of splendor. We have traveled thousands of miles, crossed numerous oceans, rivers and seas just to be here, together, in the land where everyone is at home-USIU. Thus proving to the world at large that no forest is thick enough to separate us permanently. Our rich cultures, which we strongly value and highly appreciate are all boldly represented and keep us bonded together in love and unity.

Thus far, we have learned indeed to value other people, what they stand for in terms of their beliefs and traditions. Showing that the cruelty ethnocentrism has been washed from our lives and become a vocabulary very distant and rarely used in our community. For where goodness thrives, evil has no place.

So brethren, let us rejoice, let’s sing together in jubilation and swim like fish in this fresh water lake of kaleidoscopic beauty that never runs dry. Discrimination in all its dimensions has ceased to bring meaning to us. No matter how much we beat our brains to think, we can’t just give a definition to the word. A word so ugly and comes in a package loaded with radical discrimination, gender inequality, religious segregation, the list is endless. Do any of these ring a bell? No, as a matter of fact none of these words is familiar to us. We cannot refute that these words are present in the English dictionary that most of us are familiar with, but we do know their negative impacts in our lives not withstanding the millions of lives that have been lost all over the world in an attempt to define the words. It is, therefore, with pride that we at USIU are not associated with such words.

As we go out of this wonderful community, that we have been a part of, to share our laughter, our joys and sorrows. Let the light of our ever-changing kaleidoscope shine. Let the magic that interculturalism has bestowed upon us be felt within and around us for it to spread without a hitch. For the whole world must see us for who we really are and the unique gifts we possess that has brought us this far.

The end of this part of our university education has dawned. Life’s journey is far from over, to most of us, its just beginning. It is important hereby in the spirit of strength and fearless positive aggression to show how much we cherish our education, our cultures and lives. For the beauty of this dynamic kaleidoscope must never wither.

It must keep on glowing for its strength lies unlimitedly in us -the class of 2005

USJU - The Melting Pot of Culture
Mini-Olympics 2005

This year's mini Olympics saw the emergence of a PASSION for sports unlike any that has been seen before. The main venues for the event included the USIU basketball courts, the lawn tennis court and the Barclays Bank Sports grounds. Although swimming was not showcased, the Olympics kicked off with Basketball, weightlifting, pool and board games taking up the first week the games were graced with a tremendous turnout unlike what was there in previous years.

The Most Valuable Players for the events held that week were Eric Njuguna and Clare O'Brien for weightlifting, Mark Gaya and Michelle Nyaga for basketball, Oluchiri Kennedy for chess while Alex Wainaina and Mbua Marygorret Mutheu stole the show for lawn tennis. The men's and women's title for pool were taken by Faith Makau and Hussein Haji.

The next week featured soccer and hockey here the fun was just beginning as each team realized that a lot had to be done if they were to lift the overall title at the end of the games. Kabuu John and Wangechi stole the show bagging the MVP awards while Nyakundi Albert and Angela Amuko proved that they were the masters of the stick in hockey. In badminton Stephen Ndungu and Catherine Makatiani emerged tops while Stephen Ndungu smashed his way to the men's table tennis title. In the oriental sport of Taekwondo, Edward Kakumu and Nyamai Sylvia Mueni kept their opponents on their toes in a tightly contested event. Kamau John and Christine Charagu were crowned king and queen of the track.

Behind every goal, behind every basket, behind every track run there was an engine driving us, pumping the blood through our veins and making our hearts race, letting us FEEL our sports.
Tae-Kwon-Do

Usiu hauls Tae-Kwon-Do Gold

By Ke Bek-Named

The United States International University (Kenya), clinched gold in Tae-Kwon-Do to emerge overall winners at the recently concluded East African University Games at Kenyatta University, Nairobi. Their medal haul totaled three gold, three silver and one bronze.

Team coach, Willy Nganga, expressed delight in the performance of his students whom he revealed were preparing for yet another championship. He said, victory was the outcome of dedication and resilience on the part of the practitioners. The patron, Dr. Kangethe Iraki, said he too was delighted in the outstanding performance of the players.

The successful combatants were Leaky Wachira (Gold); Micheal Etale (Gold); Eric Mutuma (Gold); Thuo Jeff Mwangi (Silver); Josheph Tom Odhiambo (Silver); Stanley M Kimani (Silver); and Collins Orore (Bronze).

Tae-Kwon_Do (the way of the fist and foot) has its origins in South Korea and it a form of martial arts with highly stylized form of kicks. Its uniqueness and popularity lie in the spectacular foot works. It teaches patience, respect and indomitability of the spirit over negative external forces.

Training has begun in earnest preparatory to some forthcoming tournaments within and outside Nairobi this year. So, leaving nothing to chance, the winning team are back to training alongside their studies.

The 15 aside Team
By Geoffrey Inako

The Western Association of Schools and Colleges (WASC) is one of six regional associations that accredit public and private schools, colleges, and universities in the United States. The Western region covers institutions in California and Hawaii, the territories of Guam, American Samoa, Federated States of Micronesia, Republic of Palau, Commonwealth of the Northern Mariana Islands, the Pacific Basin, and East Asia, and areas of the Pacific and East Asia where American/International schools or colleges may apply to it for service. The United States international university - Africa is one of the American institutions that are in the process of acquiring accreditation through the association. Accreditation for the institution means that USIU will now operate as an independent body from its sister university in California, Alliant University.

The team which arrived here in Nairobi for the accreditation process comprised professionals from various fields of study in the United States. However, during an interview with the dean in the schools of arts and sciences, Dr. Ruthie Rono, she pointed out that the accreditation was a continuous process. "The team will come back next year at the same time like this, for more scrutiny of the institution", she said. She also pointed out that the process will enable students who wish to pursue their studies in the United States via a transfer can do so with ease. The association she said has diversified functions as it operates under different commissions but under the same constitution but further pointed out that each commission has different bylaws which govern their operations.

Giving an outlook of the association, she lamented that the commission consists of 21 members who serve overlapping three-year terms. Commissioners are nominated and elected by the Presidents of accredited institutions from within the WASC region. "The Commission includes three public members; a representative from the area served by the Senior College Commission in the Pacific Basin; a representative from the Community College Segment; and a representative from the K-12 Segment" she said. The Commission members reflect diversity in institutional characteristics such as mission, size, geography, funding and sponsorship, and personal characteristics such as ethnicity, gender, and experience. All are deeply committed to higher education and volunteer countless hours to the tasks of peer accreditation.

The staff consists of The WASC Staff consists of the executive director and four associates who support the Commissioners, staff committees, and serve as institutional liaisons. There are also support staff who function in a similar capacity on a part-time basis. In addition to the institutional support staff, there are six support personnel who assist the directors and the Commission with the everyday functions of WASC. Dr. Rono also noted that the offices of the sitting board members were not hereditary and anyone with academic qualifications from the United States and its neighboring islands were free to contest the seats. "It is an honor to be the only American institution in Africa to get the accreditation status", she said as she read the policies of the association. She further pointed out that WASC was not only an organization but also a form of expression of confidence that an institution is satisfactorily achieving its objectives and that it meets or exceeds the Commission's standards of quality, integrity, and effectiveness. The Commission is concerned with institutional integrity and with performance consistent with Commission standards and policies.

The dean also noted that the Commission values information provided by students, faculty, and other members of the public about accredited institutions. This information helps the Commission to ensure that an institution continues to meet the standards set by the Commission. Procedures have been established, therefore, to provide a mechanism for the Commission to consider complaints that address violations of the Commission's standards of accreditation, eligibility requirements, or procedures she said. However, the Commission does not intervene in the internal procedures of institutions or perform as a regulatory body nor is the Commission an adjudicatory or grievance-resolving body, she added.

Accordingly, the Commission does not consider allegations concerning the personal lives of individuals connected with its affiliated institutions. It assumes no responsibility for adjudicating isolated grievances between students, faculty, or members of the public and individual institutions. The Commission will not act as a court of appeal in matters of admission, granting or transfer of academic credit, grades, fees, student financial aid, student discipline, collective bargaining, faculty appointments, promotion, tenure, and dismissals or similar matters. Dr. Rono therefore took the opportunity to remind students that grievances was a campus affair and not the responsibility of WASC.

She further pointed out that The Commission can and does respond, though, to complaints regarding allegations of conditions at affiliated institutions that raise significant questions about the institution's standards or polices. "Procedures have been established, therefore, to provide a mechanism for the Commission to consider complaints that address violations of the Commission's standards of conduct expected of an accredited institution. In addition to procedures for the review of complaints by the Commission, each affiliated institution is required to have in place student grievance and public complaint policies and procedures that are reasonable, fairly administered, and well-publicized", she said. The Commission also requires, per Federal mandate, that each institution maintain a record of student complaints and the Commission Complaint records should be maintained by the institution for the time period between Capacity and Preparatory Reviews.

However, the dean also said that there was a facilitation to wedge a complaint against WASC if need be. "If a complaint is filed against the Commission itself, the Commission Chair may designate one or more persons to review the handling of the complaint. The Commission shall review the report of the designated reviewer(s) and shall notify the complainant..."
of its response to the complaints", she said. She took the opportunity to congratulate the whole administration for having been selected for accreditation since it was the first and only institution in Africa to get the accreditation status.

The ASC team, which was also engaged in an interview, had a lot of praises for this institution. Speaking to Dr. Hiram Davis, the dean of the library, services at the California polytechnic state university, the dean lamented that in order to improve institutional capacity and educational effectiveness, the Commission has defined Standards for Accreditation. These Standards are intended to serve several purposes: To guide institutional self-reviews as a basis for assessing institutional performance and to identify needed areas of improvement to provide a framework for institutional presentations to the Commission and review teams. To serve as the basis for evaluation teams in the Institutional Review Process for the Preparatory Review in addressing the Core Commitment to Institutional Capacity and for the Educational Effectiveness Review in addressing the Core Commitment to Educational Effectiveness. To provide a foundation for Commission actions and the basis for required institutional follow-up to such actions. To assist those involved in the accrediting process, in higher education generally, and members of the public, in defining institutional quality and educational effectiveness, and in promoting the development and sharing of practices leading to the improvement of quality.

Dr. Davis also pointed out that the primary purpose of all of the association's activities is to strengthen institutions through self-study, peer evaluation, and appropriate follow-up. "The Commission seeks to sustain the quality and integrity of institutions", he said. In each instance, a college is judged by how effectively it meets its stated mission and the Commission Standards for Accreditation. The work of the Commission is accomplished by the Commission staff and the Commission members.

The dean who was representing meaning and, in others, the Commission has found through its extensive interactions with institutions and evaluation teams, the need to identify the normative way institutions would be able to address the Criterion for Review referenced by the Guidelines", he said. He also noted that, in light of the Commission has not developed a Guide for each Criterion for Review; nor, in many instances, are the Guidelines intended to address the full scope of a particular Criterion.

Where Guidelines are identified, the Commission is attempting to assist institutions with further interpretation of the Criteria for Review and provide intended ways institutions can demonstrate they have addressed them. Thus, a substantial core of full-time faculty would be commonly expected as part of an institution's demonstration that it has addressed . The Commission also remains committed to the value, that it is concerned with demonstrated results rather than wishing to prescribe the specific form of an institutional practice. "If an institution chooses not to employ the practices described in a particular Guideline, the institution is responsible to show that it has addressed the intent of the Criterion in an equally effective way", he noted.

He also took the opportunity to praise USIU for its relentless efforts in its commitment to offer top university academic standards that many universities in the African continent hope to offer in the long term. "It is indeed great to know that USIU has chosen to keep itself off political wrangles that are characteristic of public universities in the African continent", he said. The team will make another visit to the institution next year in the spring semester.
I am new

I'm a new creation today...
The painful past lies behind me...
I'm a new person today...
The gnawing of my heart stilled...
I'm a whole new woman today...
The hurts of my life slowly mended...

How can I feel so new?
What is new about me?
You may never fully understand
What this newness means to me.
For me, it's a whole new meaning
Added to my life today.

I'm a little afraid though
To live and experience the newness...
It means stepping out
Into the unknown
And yet maintain my sanity.
It means being me in this world.

How shall I live then?
One thing I know is never to turn back
To the shadows of the past.
Instead, I will steadily hinge myself
On the doorposts of my new self
And thrust forward into the unknown!

Then, only then, shall I find my self.
